

BIO – SANDRA SEALY

World renowned Barbadian griot Kamau Brathwaite fondly referred to her as “Sandra the Princess of Chichén Itzà” in his “Bird Rising” (Words Need Love Too). Sandra Sealy describes herself as “a writer and a Barbadian-Canadian raised artist clutching an English birth certificate, not content to squeeze into anyone’s chrysalis”. To others, she is simply Seawoman.

Sandra Sealy is a Caribbean author, blogger & multi-genre writer from Barbados. Her book “Chronicles Of A Seawoman: A Collection Of Poems” is available on Amazon.

The spoken-word artist is Founder of the dynamic Caribbean Writers group, which provides her Seawoman’s Caribbean Writing blog’s (seawomanscaribbeanwriting.org), main Facebook presence. It offers tools and publishing opportunities to global writers.

Membership: 1,830 from 44+ countries (and growing)

This award-winning writer takes her blog Seawoman’s Caribbean Writing (seawomanscaribbeanwriting.org) to its next iteration, Seawoman Chronicles - The Podcast, being launched on March 21st World Poetry Day spoken-word artist is Episodes will be available from Spotify and other podcast platforms.